Foreword

When a BBC Producer is 142 years old (or does it just feel like that?), he regenerates and turns into an Executive Producer, or so they say; and he gets the answers wrong . . .

Well, Perhaps I don't get them all wrong, but to be corrected by a 15-year old about the third monster on the left in a show made before he was born can be an earth-shaking experience.

But now, thanks to the quite extraordinary industry of Jean-Marc Lofficier, I can be right every time. And so can you – and you – and you. Through you, sir, who pointed out that in various Doctor Who stories there have been three entirely different and incompatible versions of the destruction of Atlantis, presumably won't need the help of Jean-Marc

Of course, he hasn't been able to put everything down; his self-imposed brief couldn't allow it even if he could have persuaded the publishers to accept a manuscript the length of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. In any case, a lot of it's secret.

For example, it will always remain untold that one of the monsters in an early Jon Pertwee story was familiarly known to one and all as Puff the Magic Dragon, looking as he did like an 8-foot-long pink-quilted pyjama case.

My lips will remain sealed about the various suggestions put forward concerning the inter-personal relationships of Alpha Centuari, the hermeaphrodite hexapod. After all, even snails must have a surprisingly interesting social life and they don't have six arms.

Anything short of such revelations (which will only be made known 300 years after the Doctor's last regeneration) is sure to be found in this remarkable piece of work of eccentric but dedicated scholarship.

They then attacked the WHEEL IN SPACE and invaded the MOON base. They tried to invade Earth with the help of INTERNATIONAL ELECTROMATICS. Later, they fought against Mankind in the galactic Cyberwars. They were almost exterminated because of one of their major weaknesses GOLD, which is deadly to them and was found in abundance on VOGA. Daleks: Created by DAVROS, the Daleks are the mutated descendants of the KALEDS. Genetically crippled by centuries of warfare, the Daleks live inside travel machines. They have only one purpose: to exterminate all other life forms. Their history is confusing: they attempted – sometimes with success – to invade Earth at various periods in its history. They used other races – OGRONS, DRACONIANS, etc – and collaborated with the MASTER, Galaxy 5, etc. to further their own plans of conquest of the Galaxy. Their war with the Thals still rages on, and so does their war with the MOVELLANS, another robotic race. They developed time travelling facilities. The Second Doctor created Good Daleks by contaminating them with the Human factor. A civil war followed, which almost destroyed the Dalek race. The Emperor Dalek is a super-Dalek, unable to leave Skaro. Dalek armies are usually led by a Black Dalek or Dalek Supreme. Davros: Great but twisted and crippled KALED scientist. He betrayed and caused the destruction of his race to create the DALEKS. He was killed by them but apparently survived inside a force-field, for he was resurrected by his creations to help them fight the MOVELLANS (4E, 5J).

Deciders: Name given to the leaders of the starliner community on the planet ALZARIUS (5R).

Deedrix: Leader of the Tigellan scientists (5Q).

One should also mention minerals or metals with peculiar properties such as the multi-purpose DALEKANIUM (KKK) or the super-heavy DWARF STAR ALLOY which kept the Time-sensitive THARILS prisoner (5S). Some minerals confer great powers on their owners, such as the TARANIUM Core which powered the Daleks' TIME DESTRUCTOR (V), the KRONOS Crystal from ATLANTIS (OOO), the BLUE CRYSTAL from METEBELIS 3 (TTT, ZZZ), GARRON's lump of JETHRIK (5A), the HYMETUSITE crystals so important to the NIMON (5L) or the Tigellan DODECAHEDRON (5Q). Omega: One of GALLIFREY's first time engineers. He blew up the star which became known as the Crab Nebulae to give the TIME LORDS the energy necessary to start time travel (this appears to be in contradiction with the RASSILON myths, which state that the energy of the Time Lords comes from a captive black hole). Omega was believed dead after the ensuing explosion and was made a hero on Gallifrey. In reality he had escaped and lived on, prisoner of an ANTI-MATTER universe where he was able to create a whole world by the very power of his mind. Wanting to leave his prison, Omega used a black hole to drain the Time Lords' energy and bring a Time Lord – in this instance, the Doctor – to him. But he was too late: his physical form had disappeared, destroyed by the anti-matter, and only his mind remained. To prevent his annihilating the Universe out of sheer despair, the Three Doctors, brought together by the Time Lords, put Omega into contact with the Second Doctor's recorder, the only artefact composed of positive matter in Omega's universe. The resulting supernova replenished the Time Lords energy resources (RRR).

This is supposedly the major source of power of the Time Lords. Rassilon also built the oldest and strongest force fields around Gallifrey (which were later supplemented by the TRANSDUCTION BARRIER). He created the symbols of power worn by the President: the MATRIX (link to the APC Net), the Sash (a device enabling its wearer to protect himself from the black hole energies), the Rod and the GREAT KEY (which can be used to gain access to and harness the energies of the hole). This aspect of the Rassilon story appears to contradict the OMEGA legends. Rassilon is also credited with having destroyed the Great Vampires (using bowships). FRANKENSTEIN'S MONSTER ANDROIDS or the Doctor's android double built by the Daleks (R), the CHUMBLIES (T), WOTAN's mobile extension, the War Machines (BB), the CYBERMATS, the GREAT INTELLIGENCE's YETI (NN, QQ), the QUARKS (TT), the LAND OF FICTION's White Robots or Clockwork Soldiers (UU), IMC's robot (HHH), LINX's Robot Knight (UUU), his fellow Sontaran STYRE's robot (4B), SUTEHK's mummies (4G) or the WHEEL IN SPACE's SERVO-ROBOT (SS). Other ANDROIDS which could duplicate life including those made by the KRAALS (4J) or the TARANS (5D). The so-called Robots of Death on the SANDMINER were divided into three categories: Dums, Vocs and Super-Vocs. Only the last two could talk and only the Super-Voc appeared to think on their own (4R). The CAPTAIN of ZANAK (5B) and the ORACLE's SEERS (4Y) are Cyborgs, a mixture of Man and machine, as the ZYGONS' SKARASEN was a combination of animal and machine (4F). One should not forget robot pets such as K9 or the POLYPHASE AVATRON (5B). Last but not least, the axe-wielding GUNDANS were built by the THARILS' slaves to be impervious to the time winds and destroy their masters (5S). See also SUPER COMPUTERS

Their uses are usually strictly controlled but a few TARDISes have been stolen from GALLIFREY: the MONK's, the WAR CHIEF's, the MASTER's and of course the Doctor's. TARDISes are immensely larger inside than the outside because of their transdimensional nature, which also causes most weapons to become non-functional inside. TARDISes are visually invulnerable to outside attack and are protected by force fields. When attacked by over-whelming forces, a TARDIS can dematerialise and rematerialise after the attacker is gone. They can, however, be moved or transported by outside forces. They are equipped with all sorts of circuits, including a chameleon circuit which enables them to blend in safely with their environment. One can enter a TARDIS only if one is in possession of its key (which can be a trionic device or an old-fashioned key). TARDISes appear to be semi-sentient. The Doctor's TARDIS is an old Type 40 and was undergoing repairs on Gallifrey when he 'borrowed' it. Its chameleon circuit is stuck into the shape of a London police box and its steering mechanism is faulty and behaves in an erratic fashion. To escape from the Black Guardian, the Doctor attached a RANDOMISER to the TARDIS, but it is now left behind on ARGOLIS. The TARDISes can be controlled from afar by the Time Lords. The Doctor's TARDIS – under more or less normal gravity conditions – is reported to having the weight of (10 x 10) power 5 kilos. RASSILON is generally known as the first Time Lord (see also OMEGA). The Time Lords destroyed the FENDAHL's race and the Great Vampires, but now they leave such interference to their secret branch, the CELESTIAL INTERVENTION AGENCY – and to free agents such as the Doctor. Time Lords are divided into Colleges such as the Prydonians (the most famous one), the Arcalians, the Patrexes, etc. The Time Lords live in the CAPITOL on GALLIFREY, which was threatened by the MASTER, the VARDANS and the SONTARANS. They were shown as static, slightly decadent, civilisation. 2 The Stage Play

Doctor Who and the Daleks in Seven Keys to Doomsday (1974)

Adelphi Theatre, London, 4 weeks from 16 December 1974

Written by: Terrance Dicks

Designed by: John Napier

Directed by: Mick Hughes

Sound: Philip Clifford

Production Supervisor: Trevor Mitchell

Production Coordinator from the BBC: Barry Letts

Fight Arranging: Mo Kiki

Monster Coordination: James Acheson

Cast: Trevor Martin (the Doctor); Wendy Padbury (Jenny); James Mathews (Jimmy); Ian Ruskin (Jedak); Patsy Dermott (Tara); Anthony Garner (Garm); Simon Jones (Master of Karn); Jacquie Dubin (Dalek Emperor); Robin Browne (Marco); Peter Jolley, Mo Kiki, Peter Whitting (Clawrentulars); Peter Jolley (Dalek dialogue).

Story: The Doctor and his two companions, Jenny and Jimmy, prevent the Daleks and their crab-like slaves, the Clawrentulars, finding the seven crystals of Karn which would enable them to control all life in the universe.

Originally planned for Jon Pertwee, the Doctor's role was taken by Trevor Martin, whilst Wendy Padbury (Zoe in the TV series) played one of his companions.

Opening scenes showed a screen with the face of Pertwee changing into Martin's. Some of the concepts – the Planet Karn, the psychic battle between the Doctor and the Master of Karn, etc. – were later used by Terrance Dicks in his story The Brain of Morbius (4K).
